

Läderach is a luxury Swiss chocolatier, sells a variety of fresh, handcrafted chocolates, including their signature FrischSchoggi.

The Challenge

Läderach's retail build-out in Minneapolis required a sophisticated tenant improvement approach that balanced brand aesthetics with the practical demands of a high-traffic commercial space. The general contractor needed a glazing partner that could deliver a premium storefront and interior glazing package that aligned with the chocolatier's upscale identity, all within the constraints of an active retail environment and a fast-paced construction schedule.

The Solution

Brin Glass was brought in to execute the full scope of glazing work, including the interior storefront systems and custom glass features that define the space's sleek, modern look. Our team collaborated closely with the design team and general contractor to ensure every detail — from hardware integration to finish selection — supported both function and brand expression. We navigated tight site logistics and coordinated closely with other trades to keep the project moving efficiently.

Results Accomplished

The finished space reflects Läderach's premium retail experience, with crisp glass lines, inviting transparency, and durable systems built for daily use. Brin Glass delivered the project on time and with precision, helping the tenant open on schedule and make an immediate impact in the local market. The result is a space that's as refined as the product it showcases.

Why was Brin Glass best suited for this project?

Brin Glass brings deep experience in tenant improvement work, especially in retail environments where timing, coordination, and brand alignment are critical. Our ability to manage complex details, adapt to evolving site conditions, and deliver flawless execution made us the right partner for this project. From start to finish, we provided the craftsmanship and responsiveness that sets Brin apart in the glazing industry.
